PREFACE

In this fifth volume of the AMERICAN BIBLIOGRAPHY the literary record enters a period distinctively marked in character from what had been its prevailing characteristics up to this time. Heretofore the periods of growth into a national literature had been distinctively religious, and dominated by individuals, who impressed upon its character the stamp of their individuality, in the manner in which we are accustomed to measure the growth of all literatures by the dominant literary figure of its time. We now enter upon a period of a complete and radical change in its character, now distinctively political, in which the intellectual effort of the best minds in the Colonies sinks into the anonymity of hazardous political discussion, or into the work of governing bodies engaged in the common interests of a people in a cause for a vital principle of government. It is impossible for one to make a close study of the printed acts and works of these various governing bodies, whether in Committee, Legislature, or Congress, and not be impressed by the high principles and lofty spirit which animated the writers. They are not written in the heat of passion, but are evidently the work of calm, clear-headed, high-thinking men, who moved deliberately, weighed the consequences of each act, and after determining a line of conduct pursued it unflinchingly to the end. In the rapid growth of the Colonies from their small beginnings to their flourishing state in wealth and population, which the British government eyed only as a source of revenue for them to squander through a weak king, they saw the distinguishing hand of Heaven, and it impressed them with the belief that no design formed against them could prosper. Their whole aim, at first, was to obtain their object by peaceful retaliatory measures, and to prevent bloodshed; to oppose British pretensions on British principles; and they were prepared to thresh the questions at issue out in the public forum of political discussion.

The same fatality which led the British ministry to pass the Stamp-Act, led them to the passage of the Act for blocking up the harbor of Boston — an Act which knit the Colonies together into a closer bond than any previous event in their history. They realised their participation in events which should be considered equally culpable with Boston in the destruction of tea in December, 1773. Philadelphia had turned away from its harbor in January, 1774, the tea-ship sent there; New York had done the same in April; and October witnessed the firing of both ship and cargo in the harbor of Annapolis. Heretofore they had been Colonies with separate interests, now they saw in the action of the British ministry only a revengeful measure which, unless resisted, might befall every seaport town in the Colonies, and they made the cause of Boston their own. This common feeling being well expressed in Virginia by an act, unprecedented in her history, setting apart the first of June, 1774, the date of the enactment of the Boston Port-Bill, as a day of public fasting, humiliation and prayer.

While the other Colonies were wondering what new form of ministerial arrogance was being prepared to force them into submission, New England, stunned by the blow which threatened to destroy its chief city and the centre of its learning, wealth and population during its development, reviewed their course during the one hundred and fifty years of colonization, and asked themselves the question, in what way had they changed that they should now be regarded by Great Britain as a conquered people upon whom tribute should be laid ; and could not find in their Charters any provision which allowed them to be taxed without their consent, and none which treated of them as serfs upon a kingly estate. As the only episode in her history equal to the arbitrary action of the ministry. They reprinted Increase Mather's Narrative of the miseries of New-England, during the arbitrary government of Sir Edmund Andros, and recalled how this had been quickly ended by their petition to the good King George. Reprinted Elijah's mantle, in which the great end and interest New England should strive for was declared by four of its greatest ministers : Jonathan Mitchel, John Higginson, William Stoughton, and Increase Mather, in apostolic succession ; and saw that, as a people, they had not wavered in their faith. Twice reprinted Thomas Prince's The Providences of God in 1746, which recalled the time when the best blood, and the treasure, of New England had been freely given to uphold the power of Great Britain in the French and Indian War ; and which now did double duty in encouraging and animating the people to put their trust in God under the distresses of the rigorous execution of the Boston Port-Bill. They asked these questions of themselves and could find no answering reasons for the changed policy of the British government toward them. And, at this late day, one may still wonder in what way had the people of New England wandered from the straight, if narrow way, their leaders had marked out for them to follow from the first. When we compare the earliest printed document, The Oath of a free man, with another Oath taken by the free-men of New Hampshire in 1776, we find the same true ring in both : the same steadfastness in the truth as they saw the light ; the same trust in God ; the same personal honor and honesty with man.

When the tension in the Colonies had become strained almost to bursting out into open rebellion against the cruel edicts of the British ministry against the town of Boston, the needed relief from the strain came in the arrival of General Thomas Gage, who had been commissioned Governor of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, as a fitting instrument to rigorously enforce them. The new Governor began his task by addressing to his constituents, in humble imitation of George the third when he ascended the throne, A Proclamation for the encouragement of piety, and virtue, and for preventing and punishing of vice, profanity and immorality. This pronouncement was evidently intended more for the eyes of the king at St. James's than for the betterment of conditions in the Colony. It deceived noone ; and the native sense of humor was quick to perceive its weaknesses. Trumbull, Freneau, and others of less poetical ability, made it the subject for their satire : parodied his aping of kingly manners ; his assumption of superior virtue ; his erroneous ideas of the moral condition of the inhabitants of the Colony he was sent to govern ; and openly derided its real animus — the hidden sting in its tail, which was aimed at sedition. It made him a common target for wit and ridicule ; and later, when he had fortified himself in Boston, and by his aggressive acts of actual warfare against the people he was sent to govern had precipitated hostilities which forever prevented a restoration of harmony between Great Britain and the Colonies, they formed a cordon around him, and by withholding all supplies, placed him in the ludicrous position of being himself shut up in the town he was sent to blockade, and from which he was only relieved by the arrival of General William Howe. It used to be customary in Massachusetts for elderly gentlemen to smile politely, and for school boys to openly grin, when the name of General Thomas Gage was mentioned; and, unless improved methods of teaching have banished the study of her glorious revolutionary history, they probably still do so there.

Following the plan of peaceful opposition, which had been successful in the agitation of the Stamp-Act, on the initiative of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts Bay, a General Congress of all the Colonies was called to meet at Philadelphia on the fifth of September, 1774, to take such action as would express the sentiments of the American Colonies on the measures instituted by the British government against them. In most of the Colonies who should represent them was determined by their known position upon public questions, which made the action of the representatives from twelve of the Colonies who met in General Congress on that day practically unanimous. As the result of their deliberations, they formed An Association, or solemn league and covenant not to import goods from Great Britain, and not to buy any goods which shall be imported from thence until their grievances were redressed, and framed A List of Grievances; formulated with the greatest ability and judgment, a Bill of Rights; prepared An Address to the people of Great Britain; together with A Memorial to their fellow citizens in the British American Colonies; and An Address to the inhabitants of the Province of Quebec. In all this they acted with the same calm judgment and moderation, and pursued the same course which had formerly been successful, and which they now confidently believed would decide the issues in the interests of the Colonies. Never before, probably, were the actions of a deliberative body more anxiously awaited, or more cordially approved. The intensity of the general interest in their proceedings being shown by nearly every press in the Colonies printing the Extracts from the Votes and proceedings of the American Continental Congress.

The election for representatives in New York to attend the General Congress at Philadelphia, had been of its usual stormy nature, and foreshadowed a controversy in which, as in the Stamp-Act controversy, the friends of American liberty found arrayed against them an opposition made up of members of the Church of England. In fact, in its controversial phases, the struggle for civil liberty in the American Colonies assumes something of the nature of religious warfare, in which the dissenting churches are opposed by the established Church of England. This opposition, which was known as the tory element, embraced some men of distinguished ability in their callings who, while not numerous, were offensively active and had to be reckoned with. According to reports then current, on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean, this tory opposition, which centered in New York, and had for its means of expression the printing-office of James Rivington, was liberally subsidized from the secret service fund of the British government. The call for a General Congress precipitated a spirited controversy, which was carried on for the most part anonymously, for party spirit ran high, and was begun by Myles Cooper, then president of King's College who, under the signature of A North-American, issued through Rivington's press a pamphlet entitled: The American querist, in which he proposed, in the Socratic method, some questions relative to the present disputes between Great Britain and the American Colonies. It served the purpose of thoroughly exasperating the friends of American liberty, and was publicly burnt by the Sons of Liberty: according to the printer, in a second edition, because "it contained some queries which they cannot, and others they will not answer." The Congress having in the meanwhile met, Mr. Cooper followed his first venture into the field of controversy with an anonymous pamphlet, from Rivington's press, which was supposed to be written by, and was reprinted in London as the work of A. W. Farmer, of whom we shall presently treat, entitled:

A Friendly address to all reasonable Americans, on the subject of our political confusions, in which he pointed out the consequences which must necessarily follow violent opposition to the king's troops, and a general non-importation, in a way which the London Magazine considered very friendly to government, and inimical to the pretended American's brethren. To this Philip Livingston made a spirited reply, under the signature of A Citizen, in a pamphlet entitled: The Other side of the question: or a defence of the liberties of North America; as did also, anonymously, General Charles Lee, in a pamphlet, addressed to the people of America, entitled: Strictures on a pamphlet, entitled, a "Friendly address to all reasonable Americans," which was printed by Bradford's press in Philadelphia. To this, Henry Barry, an officer of the British army then stationed at Boston, replied, anonymously, through the press of John Howe, in a pamphlet entitled: The General attacked by a subaltern: or the Strictures on the Friendly address examined, in which a refutation of the principles advanced by General Lee was attempted. In a more personal manner, Jonathan Boucher, probably through Rivington's press, anonymously addressed A Letter from a Virginian, to the members of the Congress to be held at Philadelphia, on the first of September, 1774, in which he endeavored to dissuade the Congress from adopting non-importation and non-exportation agreements. In November, 1774, Rivington printed the first of a series of pamphlets which were signed A. W. Farmer, the initials being designed to convey the idea that they were written by a farmer of Westchester County in New York. These were later acknowledged to have been written by Samuel Seabury who, by Scotch ordination, afterwards became the first bishop of Connecticut. The first publication of the supposed farmer, addressed to farmers, and intended to arouse the unrelenting opposition of the agricultural class against the measures proposed by the Congress, is entitled: Free thoughts, on the proceedings of the Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, Sept. 4, 1774; in it he proposed to exhibit their errors, confute their reasonings, lay open to the plainest understandings the fatal tendency of their non-importation and non-consumption measures, and to point out the only means for preserving and securing the present happy constitution. Alexander Hamilton, then a youth of seventeen years of age, directed public attention to his precocious ability by a reply to this, under the signature of A Friend to America, entitled: A Full vindication of the measures of the Congress, from the calumnies of their enemies, in which he designed to expose the sophistry, confute the cavils, detect the artifices, and ridicule the wit, of the supposed farmer, for the benefit of the farmers in New York in particular, and the inhabitants of America in general. Within two weeks Rivington printed the second of the supposed farmer's pamphlets, the salable quality of whose pseudonym he recognises by placing it upon the title page, entitled: The Congress canvassed: or, an examination into the conduct of the delegates at their grand convention, held in Philadelphia, Sept. 1, 1774. This he craftily addressed to the merchants of New York as in their interests. In December, Rivington printed a third pamphlet by the supposed farmer, intended as a reply to Alexander Hamilton, entitled: A View of the controversy between Great Britain and her Colonies, in which he included a mode for finally and effectually determining their present disputes, and preventing all future contentions. It is interesting to note the many different ways the clergy of the Church of England had for effectually settling the present and all future disputes between Great Britain and the Colonies. Besides those, like the above, modestly and diffidently advanced in the Colonies, the Reverend Dean of Gloucester also hesitatingly proposed five more different ways in one pamphlet, which was reprinted in Philadelphia; and, strangely, none of them was finally found to be the right way. In January, 1775, Rivington printed a fourth pamphlet by the supposed farmer, which gave no hint as to its authorship, but was afterward acknowledged by Samuel Seabury as his work, entitled: An Alarm to the Legislature of the Province of New-York, occasioned by the present political disturbances, in North America, which was addressed to the General Assembly, then in session, with the design of influencing legislation. Early in the year, Rivington also printed another anonymous attack upon the work of the Congress entitled: What think ye of the Congress now? in which an attempt was made to cloud the issues by an enquiry as to how far the Americans are bound to abide by, and execute the decisions of the Congress. This was written by the Reverend Thomas Bradbury Chandler, who had previously fostered the idea of an American episcopate. In it he incorporated, A Plan of a proposed union between Great Britain and the Colonies, which Joseph Galloway laid before the Congress and which they had so completely rejected as not even to give it a place in their proceedings. Galloway who had previously issued, anonymously, through Rivington's press, A Candid examination of the mutual claims of Great Britain, and the Colonies: with a plan of accomodation on constitutional principles, which the Monthly Review ascribed to the effects of illiberal motives, and unworthy passions, made the rejection of his plan an excuse for becoming a renegade to his country's cause in fact, as he had been before in heart. To the supposed farmer's third pamphlet, Alexander Hamilton made reply, under the signature of A Sincere Friend to America, in a pamphlet entitled: The Farmer refuted: or, a more impartial and comprehensive view of the dispute between Great Britain and the Colonies, intended as a further vindication of the Congress. Isaac Wilkins, who had issued through Rivington's press, under the signature of A Country Gentleman, Short advice to the Counties of New-York; and who was by many supposed to be the anonymous Westchester farmer, wrote a reply to Hamilton, the title of which was to be: The Republican dissected: or, the anatomy of an American whig, which was advertised by Rivington as in press in April, 1775. Besides those here enumerated, Rivington had been industriously making other anonymous additions to the tory issues of his press, some serious; some jocose, which have maintained their anonymity to the present day, and which were equally, if not more, offensive. The last sheet of A Reply to An Address to the author of A Candid examination, &c., which Joseph Galloway had written, was hardly off the press when, exasperated beyond endurance, the friends of American liberties could no longer forbear their resentment, and a party, headed by Isaac Sears, the leader of the Sons of Liberty in New York, raided the printing-office, destroyed the printed sheets and manuscript of Wilkins' work, and much more of the printer's property. Galloway's pamphlet was not published, by Hugh Gaine, until about a year after. Isaac Wilkins fled the country, a reward of one hundred pounds for his capture hastening his departure, and was thereafter a pensioner of the British government. Rivington, himself, was compelled to make public apology, and pledge to so conduct his press as not to give further offence; to sign the Association of non-importation, and declare his unalterable resolution rigidly to conform to its provisions; in addition to which he humbly entreated the pardon of those whom he had offended by his ill-judged publications, in four successive issues of his paper. Notwithstanding this abject submission to the will of the people, the political views of Rivington's New-York Gazetteer continued to give proof that it was published in the interests of the British government and not of the Colonies; color to which was given when the words "open and uninfluenced" were dropped from the heading. As the views of his paper became more and more obnoxious, the shafts of ridicule were directed against the printer by the satirists. On the 5th of November, 1775, some forty of his subscribers in Baltimore addressed to Rivington a printed circular ordering him not to send any more copies of his paper to them, and strongly intimating that if it was printed in Baltimore he would receive a coat of tar and feathers like the sample they enclosed. On the 27th of November, his printing-office was again raided; this time the press was destroyed, and his types carried away and melted into bullets. Rivington left the city, for the pension which seems to have been awaiting all actively offensive tories in England, and when he returned upon the occupancy of the city by the British army, bore with him the somewhat empty honor of King's Printer for New York.

In December, 1774, there appeared in the Massachusetts Gazette: and Boston Post-boy, a series of seventeen political essays, extending in publication to April, 1775, under the signature of Massachusettensis, a Native of New England, addressed to the inhabitants of the Province of Massachusetts Bay, which attracted wide attention from the ingenuity of their arguments, and the brilliant and polished style of the writer. They took the side of the British government against the Colonies, and Rivington, who collected and published some of them in New York, gave them the title: The Origin of the American contest with Great-Britain, or the present political state of the Massachusetts-Bay in general, and the town of Boston in particular, exhibiting the rise and progress of the disordered state of that country. The anonymous author was long supposed to be Jonathan Sewall, the King's Attorney General for the Colony, but is now known to be Daniel Leonard. They called for reply from no ordinary mind, and John Adams, on his return from the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, undertook to answer and expose the misrepresentations and falacious reasonings contained in them, in a series of essays under the signature of Novanglus. It was an intellectual debate in which the combatants were well-matched; and so late as the year 1819, when both were reprinted together in Boston, the North American Review said: both are admirably adapted to their object, and cannot be read without emotion even now.

Events of great importance to the Colonies followed each other in quick succession during the year 1775. The battles of Lexington and Concord, in April, in which the British troops were the aggressors, were followed, in June, by that of Charlestown, at Bunker's Hill; in each of which the physically vanquished were the moral victors. With the aid of a chronological arrangement the stirring news can be followed from city to city, see it certified by the Committee of Correspondence in each place, and the clattering messenger speeding away southward until it reached the capitol of Virginia in eight days after the event. By the same agencies a constitutional post office service was established, by Benjamin Franklin, in opposition to the British post office system, which effectually cut off all government revenues from that source. In May, the Congress met for the second time and, in view of the alarming situation of public affairs, one of its first acts was to direct that Thursday, the twentieth of July, be observed by all the Colonies as a day of humiliation, fasting and prayer. The day was generally observed, and the occasion made memorable and lasting by many of the sermons being printed. On the sixth of July, they addressed A Declaration, setting forth the causes and necessity of their taking up arms, which was drawn up by John Dickinson; and followed this, two days later, by An Address, To the inhabitants of Great-Britain, prepared by Richard Henry Lee; and An Address, To the people of Ireland. The addresses were replied to in England by Mrs. Catharine Macaulay, in what was considered a masterly manner; and, anonymously, by John Lind; and by Sir John Dalrymple. The latter's performance being written, printed, and liberally distributed in Great Britain and America at the instance and expense of the British government; and was, according to the Monthly Review, well calculated by inflaming misrepresentations and invectives to aggravate the evils, and to exasperate the people of Great Britain against their brethren in America. That they did not represent the true public sentiment, or the business interests of Great Britain, is shown by the attitude of the cities of Bristol and London; and by a weekly series of political essays, modeled upon the more celebrated Letters of Junius, published from January, 1775, to June, 1776, entitled: The Crisis, which assailed the king, his court, and ministry, the Church, and the Parliament, for their stand against the American Colonies, with a boldness of denunciation, and an offensiveness of statements, far exceeding anything printed in the Colonies.

The unsettled conditions of government in the several Colonies also engaged the attention of the Congress, who advised that they consider their present governments abrogated by the hostile acts of Great Britain, and empowered them to call a full and free representation of the people, and establish such a form of government as will in their judgment best produce the happiness of the people, and secure peace and good order during the continuance of the disputes between Great Britain and the Colonies. In this, independence was only partially aimed at ; but it appears that so early as August, 1775, it was currently reported in New York, that the Congress had passed a resolve that unless American grievances were redressed by the first of March, 1776, the Colonies would be declared free and independent of Great Britain ; and so insistent had this rumor been that Henry Remsen, deputy chairman of the New York Committee, publicly denied it over his signature, and declared the report false and malicious and its author an enemy to his country. This attitude expressed the feeling of the small, conservative element, which was well-represented by the Reverend John J. Zubly of Georgia, composed of men who were willing to go with the public sentiment of their Colonies to any length short of absolute independence. In January, 1776, there was issued, anonymously, from the press of Robert Bell, in Philadelphia, a pamphlet entitled : Common sense, which was addressed to the inhabitants of America, on the subjects of government in general, and the English Constitution in particular ; on monarchy and hereditary succession ; and on the present state, and ability of America. Not promising subjects of popular interest, as we now regard them ; but this work was so thoroughly in touch with the spirit of the times, and appeared so opportunely at the psychological moment when the public mind was in a receptive mood to its ideas,—the two chief essentials to popularity — that it was easily the most popular work issued in the American Colonies up to this time. Not less than twelve editions were printed, and the sales soon reached one hundred thousand copies. It advocated independency. And it crystalized a wavering and unsteady public sentiment into form ; smoothed away difficulties ; familiarised and accustomed the public mind to the idea ; and gave the people the shibboleth of complete independence of Great Britain, as no other agency had done or promised to do. The Legislature of Pennsylvania voted its author five hundred pounds in appreciation of its value to the cause of American liberty. And it achieved for Thomas Paine a fame which will endure so long as the Republic lives. Its powerful effect upon the public mind was not underrated by the enemies to independency in any form ; and there soon appeared from Bell's press, under the signature of Candidus, a reply, entitled : Plain truth, also addressed to the inhabitants of America, wherein its author endeavored to show that American independence was illusory, ruinous and impracticable ; that America had no such real powers ; and that reconciliation with Great Britain was the only safe, honorable and expedient course. The authorship has been attributed to various persons, and is here given to the Reverend William Smith, D. D. It was written with such outrageous zeal, and contained so many scurrilous reflections upon the favorers of American independence, as to defeat its own object ; and drew from the Monthly Review the statement that a government of the tyrannical nature some have chosen to represent the Congress would not have permitted its publication if they aimed at separation. The Reverend Charles Inglis, also a clergyman of the Church of England, issued from the press of James Humphreys, junior, of Philadelphia, under the signature of An American, a pamphlet entitled : The True interest of America impartially stated, in certain strictures on a pamphlet entitled Common sense. And Rusticus, the well-known pseudonym of John Dickinson, replied with some of his old fire to William Smith, in Remarks on a pamphlet entitled Plain truth, which was printed by John Dunlap.

Convinced, by the hostile action of the king and his ministry in withdrawing from the Colonies the protection of the crown ; denying their right, and rejecting with contempt their Petition for a redress of grievances ; and allowing no alternative short of abject submission ; that any further endeavors to restore peace and security under British rule would be useless, the Congress then determined upon independence, by declaring the United Colonies free and independent States. This plan had been proposed to the Congress by the Virginia Convention held May 15, 1776; and it was fitting that the honor of formulating their determination should be given to a representative from that Colony, and Thomas Jefferson, one of the ablest of the younger members of the Congress, was given this task. In Congress, July 4, 1776, was promulgated A Declaration by the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled,—greatest of human documents, revered by its friends, admired by its foes, ever written by man. This divinely inspired document has all the majestic flow of utterance, sublimity of thought and expression, grandeur and breadth of a great epic. Time has only added to its greatness as its world-wide influences have become more and more apparent in the destinies of nations. This important step taken, the Congress strengthened their determination with the Articles of confederation and perpetual union, between the States.

The scarcity of paper for writing and printing during the revolutionary period occasioned great inconvenience in all the Colonies. In some of them the newspapers and other periodical publications were forced to suspend, and others were reduced in size, from this cause. Legislative action was required to secure for the paper mills in operation the necessary materials for paper-making; and the newspapers generally contained the printer's offer of cash for rags, which were an interchangeable commodity at the mills for paper. The need of linen cloth in the hospital service of the armies, made the use of coarser grades a necessity, and the paper generally made at the mills was of a poor quality. Even in Pennsylvania, where paper mills were most numerous, the paper was of so poor a quality as to make reading difficult and at this day sometimes uncertain. The entire country depended for its supply of paper at this time upon about ten paper mills in Pennsylvania—one, at least, of them manufacturing a good grade of paper from which the Congress obtained its supply; one mill at Norwich, Connecticut, where a superior quality of paper was manufactured; one mill at Providence, Rhode Island; and four mills at Milton, Massachusetts; with such stocks of paper, principally in New York, and Charleston, as were on hand when non-importation began. The needs of the Congress, and of the different State governments, in a time when so much depended upon united action, were, necessarily, first to be considered. And, in the general distress from this cause, the printed broadside and the broadsheet became the prevailing form of literature for governments, communities and individuals, as the pamphlet had been in previous periods. Few large works were undertaken. The pamphlet literature largely related to the political relations between the two countries, or to means and ways of defence. The almanac maker suffering most at the hands of the paper dealer; such issues as have escaped the destroying hand of time being neither creditable to the industry, or to the art. Frequently several qualities and colors of paper would be used in the same work. The public, and the publisher, accepting the inevitable necessity in the spirit voiced by Robert Bell, of Philadelphia, who pasted in every copy of his Additions to William Smith's Plain truth, a slip of coarse blue-tinted paper, on which a third of the work was printed, this explanation: To every purchaser. The impossibility of obtaining white, constituted the law of necessity, for part of these Additions to appear in blue. The philosopher reacheth beyond outward appearances.—The patriot surmounteth every difficulty. And the bookseller industriously attempteth business agreeable to the prescriptions and decrees of the British and American laws of freedom concerning the liberty of the press.

In this connection it may not be amiss to take up with the student of bibliography the question of an exact description for the various forms used in the issues from the printing press—a subject upon which there is a total absence of such essential information in all manuals of bibliography and library economy, and a confusing variation of opinion on technical points in works of more general information. There are five of these forms, in order, Broadside, Broad-sheet, Tract, Pamphlet, and Book ; and the questions at issue are what constitutes each of them, and what is the essential difference between them, bibliographically. The single sheet of paper upon which the matter is imposed furnishes the basis for the description without regard to the size, or to the manner, whether in one, two, or more columns, in which the printed matter is displayed. First, the Broadside. If the printed matter is on the recto, or face, of an unfolded sheet, only, it is, bibliographically, a broadside, in folio, quarto, octavo, or sixteenmo size, as the printed sheet of paper may be. The proclamation, sheet calendar, hand bill, advertisement, and political squib, whose design is to be posted up for general information, are all of this description. Second, the Broadsheet. If the printed matter overruns the recto of an unfolded sheet, and the verso is also printed upon, it then becomes a broadsheet, and is bibliographically described as consisting of pp. (2), folio, quarto, octavo, or whatever size the single sheet of paper may be. The circular letter, and short political address, belong to this description. Dictionaries and encyclopædias make the two terms, broadside and broadsheet, synonymous : bibliographically they are not, being differentiated in the manner stated. Third, the Tract. If the single sheet is imposed in pages, and the printed matter begins and ends on a single sheet, without regard to the number of pages the sheet is folded into, it is a tract, generically from the Latin tractatus, and its bibliographical description, in extreme, is : pp. 4, if in folio ; pp. 8, if in quarto ; pp. 16, if in octavo ; pp. 32, if in sixteenmo. In other words, the number of leaves in a tract never exceed its size in fold ; and it has no signatures. Fourth, the Pamphlet. If the printed matter requires two sheets folded into pages it is then a pamphlet, probably from the French, par un fillet — held together by a thread ; or, palme feuillet — leaves held in the hand. Briefly, a pamphlet consists of from two to five printed and folded sheets stitched together. The rule being that a pamphlet does not exceed five printed sheets when folded in octavo. This ruling gives to a pamphlet, in extreme, twenty pages when printed in folio ; forty pages when printed in quarto ; and eighty pages when printed in octavo. After which it ceases to be a pamphlet, and is then a Book. Contrary to the usually accepted belief, binding does not make the book — the four forms noted do not lose their original characters, bibliographically, when bound.

— GENTLEMEN, THE EVILS WHICH WE HAVE LONG FORESEEN ARE NOW COME UPON THIS TOWN AND PROVINCE, THE LONG MEDITATED STROKE IS NOW GIVEN TO THE CIVIL LIBERTY OF THIS COUNTRY? HOW LONG WE MAY BE ALLOWED THE ENJOYMENT OF OUR RELIGIOUS LIBERTY IS A QUESTION OF INFINITE MOMENT. RELIGION CAN NEVER BE RETAINED IN IT'S PURITY WHERE TYRANNY HAS USURPED THE PLACE OF REASON AND JUSTICE. THE BILL FOR BLOCKING UP THE HARBOUR OF BOSTON IS REplete WITH INJUSTICE AND CRUELTY, THOUSANDS OF INNOCENT MEN, BESIDES WOMEN AND INFANTS, ARE BY IT REDUCED TO INDIGENCE AND DISTRESS; . . . THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT OF OUR SUCCEEDING TO THE UTMOST OF OUR WISHES IF WE UNIVERSALLY COME INTO A SOLEMN LEAGUE, NOT TO IMPORT GOODS FROM GREAT BRITAIN, AND NOT TO BUY ANY GOODS THAT SHALL HERE-AFTER BE IMPORTED FROM THENCE, UNTIL OUR GRIEVANCES SHALL BE REDRESSED. SIGNED BY ORDER AND IN BEHALF OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE FOR BOSTON. BOSTON, JUNE 8, 1774.

- 13427 — WE THE SUBSCRIBERS, INHABITANTS OF THE TOWN OF [ ] HAVING TAKEN INTO OUR SERIOUS CONSIDERATION THE PRECARIOUS STATE OF THE LIBERTIES OF NORTH-AMERICA, AND MORE ESPECIALLY THE PRESENT DISTRESSED CONDITION OF THIS INSULTED PROVINCE, EMBARRASSED AS IT IS BY SEVERAL ACTS OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT, TENDING TO THE ENTIRE SUBVERSION OF OUR NATURAL AND CHARTER RIGHTS; AMONG WHICH IS THE ACT FOR BLOCKING UP THE HARBOUR OF BOSTON; . . . [Four agreements: to suspend all commercial intercourse with Great Britain; not to purchase or consume, or permit anyone, any goods imported from Great Britain; or to purchase or use any goods imported from Great Britain; and anyone refusing to sign this paper to withdraw all commercial connexions with them forever, and publish their names to the world.] WITNESS OUR HANDS, JUNE, 1774.
[Boston : Printed by Edes & Gill, 1774.] Broadside. fol. MSL. NYPL.
The Massachusetts State Library has two forms of this Agreement both of the date of June 1774, and with, and without, a form of oath attached, having some changes in form, but varying not in the general heading and purpose.
- 13428 THE MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE: AND THE BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS-LETTER. JANUARY-DECEMBER, 1774.
Boston : Printed and published by Richard Draper in Newbury-Street. 1774. fol.
With the issue for May 19th, John Boyle was admitted to partnership under the firm name of Draper and Boyle. This partnership terminated with the death of Richard Draper, June 5th. His widow continued the publication of the paper under the firm name of Margaret Draper & John Boyle to August 4th, when their contract was dissolved by mutual consent, and Margaret Draper continued its publication in Newbury Street without imprint, but with the word "Draper's" above the heading until September 5, 1775. The characterization of John Boyle as a tory in the first volume, number 1151, of this work, was intended to apply to John Howe.
- 13429 THE MASSACHUSETTS [Arms] GAZETTE: AND BOSTON POST-BOY AND ADVERTISER. JANUARY-DECEMBER, 1774.
Boston : Printed and published by Nathaniel Mills and John Hicks next door to Cromwell's head Tavern in School Street. 1774. fol. MHS.

- 13430 [Cut] THE MASSACHUSETTS SPY [Cut] OR, THOMAS'S BOSTON JOURNAL. [Motto, and Cut.] JANUARY-DECEMBER, 1774.
With the issue for August 25th, the printing-office was removed to the south corner of Marshall's Lane, leading from the Mill Bridge into Union Street. On the 7th of July, first appeared the famous device of the dismembered snake and the dragon, which extended under the whole width of the heading, and continued to appear in every succeeding issue while the paper was printed in Boston. The dragon represented Great Britain, and the snake the nine Colonies from New England to Georgia, and over the severed parts of the snake the motto: Join or die! The motto reads: "Do thou great Liberty inspire our souls—And make our lives in thy possession happy—Or, our deaths glorious in thy just defence."

Later in the year 1775, Lord Dunmore, who was attempting to govern Virginia from a flotilla, seized the press, and after his destruction of Norfolk, in January, 1776, printed on board his ship a little newspaper called The Virginia Gazette, which was distributed on shore among the loyalists, of which no copies appear to be extant.

Little is known of this newspaper venture of John Anderson's. From the few scattering numbers known to be in existence, it is shown to have been commenced August 2, 1775, and continued certainly to June, 1776, and probably to the end of its first year, in July. But certainly not after the British occupancy of New York City in October, 1776.

13996 — — A CRISIS EXTRAORDINARY. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1775. [Three lines.] GENERAL GAGE'S PROCLAMATION LIES BEFORE ME, THOUGH IT IS NOT A SUBJECT FOR CRITICISM, YET IT DESERVES NOTICE; . . . [Signed,] CASCA. THE SECOND EDITION
[Philadelphia: Re-printed by B. Towne. November 23, 1775.] pp. (16). 8vo.

These numbers of The Crisis are apparently all that were reprinted in the American Colonies. The original issues, printed in London, appeared weekly, commencing January 4, 1775, and continuing to June 8, 1776, forming, with The Crisis Extraordinary, for August 9, 1775, a complete series of ninety-two numbers. Beginning with Number 51, for January 6, 1776, there was added to the heading: "during the present bloody civil war in America." Its republication in the Colonies was at irregular periods, and in the form of a political tract. Complete series of the original issues, as well as of the American reprints, are of great rarity. The supposed author, under various signatures, is said to be William Moore, author of The North Briton Extraordinary. The collection of papers constitute a remarkably severe arraignment of the British ministry and government, and in their boldness of attack exceed anything printed in the Colonies. While they lack that fine distinction, which is called Style, of their more justly noted precursors—The Letters of Junius—the papers are good examples of vigorous English in prose and verse, and are embellished with that appositeness of classical quotation which is one of the distinguishing qualities of the political pamphleteer. No. III. To the King, is particularly bold, and purposely offensive, and was declared by the Parliament to be a "false, malicious, seditious and treasonable libel," and ordered to be burnt by the common hangman on two successive days. On March 6, 1775, the day of execution, there was hawked about the streets of London a broadside, headed with a cut of hawkers crying and citizens buying No. 3. The Crisis, and entitled: "The Last dying speech of the Crisis, which is to be burned at one o'clock this day in Palace-Yard, Westminster, and tomorrow at two at the Royal Exchange, as a malicious libel against his Majesty." This brought together a prodigious concourse of people who interfered and almost roasted the hangman on his own fire. In taking leave of their readers in the 90th number, the publishers say: "We now lay down this paper, with grateful thanks to the public, and as liberty and virtue have taken their flight to America, the only Asylum for Freemen, we are determined to follow, and not longer struggle in vain to animate our dastardly degenerate countrymen, with the noble spirit of their Forefathers."

A CANDID EXAMINATION OF THE MUTUAL CLAIMS OF GREAT-BRITAIN, AND THE COLONIES : WITH A PLAN OF ACCOMMODATION, ON CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES.
New-York : Printed by James Rivington, M,DCC,LXXV. pp. (2), (62). 8vo. BA. JCB. LCP. LOC. MHS. NYPL. VSL.
Two impressions were printed this year. The first, with a list of errata on the verso of the title. The second, with the verso blank. The Lenox Collection of the New York Public Library has both forms. Reprinted at London in 1780. It was written before Galloway, who had been a speaker of the House of Assembly of Pennsylvania, and a member of the Continental Congress of 1774, had openly become a renegade to his country's cause. Of it the Monthly Review says : "This pamphlet (anonymously published) has been advertised as the production of Mr. Galloway, and we have otherwise sufficient authority not only to ascribe it to that gentleman, but to consider it as the effect of illiberal motives and unworthy passions."

AAS. These political essays first appeared in The Massachusetts Gazette, under the signature of Massachusettensis. Their anonymous author was supposed to be Jonathan Sewell, then attorney-general of the king for the Province of Massachusetts Bay, but is now known to be Daniel Leonard. They took the side of the government against the Colonies, and attracted much attention by their ingenuity of argument, and ornamented and polished style. John Adams on his return from the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, determined to expose the misrepresentations and fallacious reasonings which they contain in a series of essays under the signature of Novanglus ; "which," says the North American Review for September, 1819, "are distinguished by clearness and force of reasoning, copiousness of illustrations, vehemence of manner, and occasional traits of genius, which remind us of Dr. Franklin. Both are admirably adapted to their object, and cannot be read without emotion even now." Reprinted at London this year ; and in two editions in 1776 ; with Novanglus, at Boston in 1819 ; and, partly, in New York, as follows :

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, AND IRELAND, ON THE PRESENT IMPORTANT CRISIS OF AFFAIRS. THE THIRD EDITION.
London, Printed. New-York, Reprinted. 1775. 8vo. LCP.
Relates to the American Colonies. On its appearance this Address was pronounced: "A masterly specimen of accurate reasoning, and municipal information: predictions so coolly and sedately delivered evince a deep insight into political science, a profound knowledge of history and of human kind, not to say a degree of divine illumination, and well worthy the serious consideration of every Briton who wishes for the prosperity of his country."

At about the latter date John Howe became the printer and publisher until the Boston News-letter was finally discontinued in the following year.
- 14250 [Cut] THE MASSACHUSETTS SPY [Cut] OR, THOMAS'S BOSTON JOURNAL. [Motto and Cut.] JANUARY-APRIL 6, 1775.
Boston : Printed by Isaiah Thomas, at the south corner of Marshall's Lane, leading from the Mill-Bridge into Union-Street. 1775. fol.
The acuteness of the political crisis forced the suspension of the Spy in Boston with the above issue, and Thomas removed his press and materials to Worcester, where publication was resumed in May under the following title :
- 14251 — AMERICANS ! - LIBERTY OR DEATH ! - JOIN OR DIE ! THE MASSACHUSETTS SPY OR AMERICAN ORACLE OF LIBERTY. VOL. V. NO. 219. WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, [— August 16, 1775.]
Worcester : Printed by Isaiah Thomas, 1775. fol.
With the issue for August 16th the exhortation in the heading was dropped, and the form altered to Thomas's Massachusetts Spy or American oracle of liberty, until June 1776. The issue for May 3d was the first printing executed in Worcester.
- 14252 MATHER, INCREASE 1639-1723
A NARRATIVE OF THE MISERIES OF NEW-ENGLAND, BY REASON OF AN ARBITRARY GOVERNMENT ERECTED THERE. PRINTED IN THE TYRANIC [sic] REIGN OF SIR EDMUND ANDROSS.
Boston : Re-printed and sold [by Edes and Gill] opposite the Court-House, in Queen-Street. 1775. pp. [8.] 8vo. BA. HC. LCF. MHS. NYPL.
- 14253 MATHER, MOSES 1719-1806
AMERICA'S APPEAL TO THE IMPARTIAL WORLD. WHEREIN THE RIGHTS OF THE AMERICANS, AS MEN, BRITISH SUBJECTS, AND AS COLONISTS ; THE EQUITY OF THE DEMAND, AND OF THE MANNER IN WHICH IT IS MADE UPON THEM BY GREAT BRITAIN, ARE STATED AND CONSIDERED. AND, THE OPPOSITION MADE BY THE COLONIES TO ACTS OF PARLIAMENT, THEIR RESORTING TO ARMS IN THEIR NECESSARY DEFENCE, AGAINST THE MILITARY ARMAMENTS, EMPLOYED TO ENFORCE THEM, VINDICATED. [Eight lines of Scripture texts.]
Hartford : Printed by Ebenezer Watson, 1775. pp. [72.] 8vo. BA.
- 14254 MAYLEM, JOHN 1695-1742
THE CONQUEST OF LOUISBURG A POEM, BY JOHN MAYLEM PHILO-BELLUM.
Boston, Printed in 1758. Newport, (R. I.) Reprinted by Solomon Southwick in 1775. pp. 16. 16mo.

It appeared generally without imprint, but was founded, and published in this irregular manner, by Robert Fowle, the nephew and former partner of Daniel Fowle, the first printer in the Province. Sometime in the year 1777 it was finally discontinued. Robert Fowle, who was a royalist, and at one time suspected of counter-feiting the currency of the State, fled within the lines of the British army in New-York.

[1775.] pp. (2), 604. 4to. Founded by Benjamin Towne, and continued by him, as a tri-weekly on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, until its publication ceased sometime during the year 1783. Immediately following the occupancy of Philadelphia by the British army, in 1777, publication was suspended for two weeks, and then resumed under the auspices of the British General. For this Towne was proscribed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania after the evacuation, but he professed a change, and continued to publish his paper, later under the title of : The Pennsylvania Evening Post, and public advertiser, until the year 1783.	AUCTION VALUES $59

And where subscriptions are taken in for this paper, at ten shillings per year. 1775. fol. Founded by James Humphreys, junior, and continued by him until its publication finally ceased in May, 1778. Owing to Humphreys pronounced British sympathies he was obliged to suspend publication with the number for the 30th of November, 1776, and publication was not again resumed until Philadelphia was occupied by the British army, when it appeared with the changed title of : The Pennsylvania Ledger : or the weekly advertiser, but with a consecutive numbering, on the 10th October, 1777. In December, the title was again changed to : The Pennsylvania Ledger : or the Philadelphia Market-day advertiser, and it was published semi-weekly, on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Just before the British troops evacuated Philadelphia, with the issue for the 23d May, 1778, the paper was discontinued. Humphreys himself was declared a traitor by the State government of Pennsylvania, and his property confiscated.

New-York: Printed by James Rivington, 1775. fol. NYPL.
With the number for August 17th, the words "open and uninfluenced" were dropped from the heading. The political views expressed in the paper had long been obnoxious to the friends of American liberty, and on the 27th of November, the printing-office was wrecked, the press destroyed, and the types carried away, and afterwards melted and formed into bullets. Rivington left the city for England, but returned upon the occupancy of New-York by British soldiers, and resumed publication of his paper under its former title, on the 4th of October, 1777, as "King's Printer for New-York."

The two maps missing from all copies of this work, were afterwards engraved by John Lodge, and published in London, May 31, 1781, and copies are sometimes found with these maps inserted. Although the author also states that the second volume "is now in the press," no copies are known. The engraved pages are somewhat rudely executed by the author himself, and the work is seldom found in a complete state.	$85

I UNDERSTAND THAT THE OFFICERS ENGAGED IN THE CAUSE OF LIBERTY AND THEIR COUNTRY, WHO BY THE FORTUNE OF WAR HAVE FALLEN INTO YOUR HANDS, HAVE BEEN THROWN INDISCRIMINATELY INTO A COMMON JAIL, APPROPRIATED FOR FELONS—THAT NO CONSIDERATION HAS BEEN HAD FOR THOSE OF THE MOST RESPECTABLE RANK, WHEN LANGUISHING WITH WOUNDS AND SICKNESS—THAT SOME OF THEM HAVE BEEN EVEN AMPUTATED, IN THIS UNWORTHY SITUATION. [Notifying General Gage that he will hereafter regulate his treatment of prisoners by that shown to American prisoners.] GEORGE WASHINGTON. BOSTON, AUGUST 13, 1775, SIR, TO THE GLORY OF CIVILIZED NATIONS, HUMANITY AND WAR HAVE BEEN COMPATIBLE; AND COMPASSION TO THE SUBDUED IS BECOME ALMOST A GENERAL SYSTEM. . . . UPON THESE PRINCIPLES, YOUR PRISONERS, WHOSE LIVES BY THE LAWS OF THE LAND ARE DESTINED TO THE CORD, HAVE HITHERTO BEEN TREATED WITH CARE AND KINDNESS, . . . MY INTELLIGENCE FROM YOUR ARMY WOULD JUSTIFY SEVERE RECRIMINATION. . . . [Declaring British soldiers will meet retaliation with becoming fortitude.] T. GAGE. HEAD-QUARTERS, CAMBRIDGE, AUG. 19, 1775. I ADDRESSED YOU ON THE ELEVENTH INSTANT IN TERMS WHICH GAVE THE FAIREST SCOPE FOR THE EXERCISE OF THAT HUMANITY AND POLITENESS, WHICH WERE SUPPOSED TO FORM A PART OF YOUR CHARACTER. . . . IF YOUR OFFICERS, OUR PRISONERS, RECEIVE A TREATMENT FROM ME, DIFFERENT FROM WHAT I WISHED TO SHEW THEM, THEY AND YOU WILL REMEMBER THE OCCASION OF IT. . . . G. WASHINGTON.

- 14603 THE VIRGINIA [Arms] GAZETTE. ALWAYS FOR LIBERTY, AND THE PUBLICK GOOD. NUMBER 1. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3, [— December, 1775.]

[Williamsburg :] Alexander Purdie, Printer. 1775. fol. LOC.

Founded by Alexander Purdie, and continued by him in the interests of the friends of American Independence to May ? 1778. In October, 1775, Alexander Purdie was appointed, by Benjamin Franklin, Constitutional Postmaster, and the printing-office became the post-office as well. After the Declaration of Independence he became Printer to the Commonwealth. In May, 1776, the cut of the Arms, in the heading, was displaced by a square with the motto: Thirteen United Colonies. United, we stand—divided, we fall. And this was displaced, in June, by a cut of a snake, and the motto: Don't tread on me. Which was continued into the following year.

- 14604 THE VIRGINIA GAZETTE. OPEN TO ALL PARTIES, BUT INFLUENCED BY NONE. JANUARY-DECEMBER, 1775.

Williamsburg : Printed by John Pinkney, 1775. fol. LOC.

Up to April the Gazette was printed "for the benefit of Clementina Rind's children." Beginning with December 6th the form of the paper was altered to quarto, and the Gazette issued semi-weekly, on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

- 14605 THE VIRGINIA [Arms] GAZETTE. WITH THE FRESHEST ADVICES, FOREIGN AND DOMESTICK. JANUARY-DECEMBER, 1775.

14606	THE VIRGINIA GAZETTE. NUMBER 1. SATURDAY, APRIL 22, [—December, 1775.]  Williamsburg : Printed by J. Clarkson and A. Davis, 1775. 4to.            Founded by John Clarkson, and Augustine Davis, and continued by them to the end of the year 1780. The invasion of Virginia by the British army forced suspension, probably with the issue for December 9th. With the vandal acts of invasion, the ancient glory of Williamsburg as the capital of Virginia departed forever.	AUCTION VALUES

Holt &amp; Co. at the Printing-Office near the Market-House. 1775. fol.            Discontinued at about the above date. In June of this year Lord Dunmore took refuge upon a man of war, and attempted to govern Virginia from a flotilla off Norfolk. Shortly after, the press of John H. Holt &amp; Co., was seized by his orders, and after the destruction of Norfolk in January, 1776, there was issued from his ship a little newspaper called The Virginia Gazette, which was distributed on shore among the loyalists, of which no copies are known to be extant.

— — THE AMERICAN WONDER : OR, THE STRANGE AND REMARKABLE CAPE-ANN DREAM. [Cut of astronomer taking an observation.]

Salem ; N. E. Printed and sold by E. Russell, next to John Turner, esq ; upper end of Main-Street. M.DCC.LXXVI. Travelling-traders, Shopkeepers, &c. are desired to call at the above place, where is just published, (Price one shilling single, and nine shillings per doz.) The twelfth edition of that excellent and much-admired pamphlet, entitled Common sense ; addressed to the inhabitants of the American Colonies. To which is annexed, an appendix by the same ingenious author. pp. [24.] 8vo. EI.

*Second title, on reverse : THE AMERICAN WONDER OR, THE NEW-ENGLAND VISION OF THE NIGHT ; BEING THE MOST REMARKABLE DREAM THAT EVER WAS DREAMED IN AMERICA. TOGETHER WITH A SHORT EXHORTATION TO ALL INTO WHOSE HANDS THIS DREAM MAY FALL. IT WAS SOME TIME SINCE DREAMED BY SAMUEL CLARKE, OF GLOUCESTER, IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX, AND COLONY OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, WHICH HE AFTERWARDS WROTE WITH A PEN IN HIS TEETH, AS HE LAY BED-RID THIRTY YEARS ; FOURTEEN OF WHICH HE WAS NOT ABLE TO LIFT HIS HAND TO HIS HEAD. IT IS NOW RE-PUBLISHED AT THE REQUEST OF MANY FRIENDS TO AMERICA ; AND AS MOST OF THE PREDICTIONS THEREIN CONTAINED ARE AT THIS DAY IN A VERY SURPRIZING AND REMARKABLE MANNER ACCOMPLISHED, IT IS THOUGHT VERY APPLICABLE TO THE PRESENT TIMES. IN THE EIGHTH EDITION IS CONTAINED SOME MARGINAL NOTES, AND A VERY SUITABLE AND SEASONABLE PREFACE, BY WAY OF OBSERVATION AND COMPARISON BETWEEN THE TIMES IN WHICH THE THINGS WERE FORETOLED IN THE ABOVE DREAM AND THE PRESENT DARK AND MELANCHOLLY [sic] DAY, WHICH WERE NEVER INSERTED IN ANY FORMER EDITION : BY PUBLICOLA, WHO IS A SINCERE FRIEND AND WELL-WISHER TO THE CIVIL AND RELIGIOUS RIGHTS AND LIBERTIES OF THE AMERICAN COLONIES IN GENERAL AND WHO MOST HUMBLY DEPRECATE THE DEPREDACTIONS LATELY MADE THEREIN, AND THE DISTRESSED SITUATION AMERICA IS NOW THROWN INTO, OCCASIONED BY THE CRUELTY OF OUR ENEMIES.—As, IN THE NOTES OF THIS PAMPHLET, ARE INSERTED THE NAMES OF MANY OF OUR BRAVE AND RENOWNED AMERICAN BRETHREN, WHO FELL IN FIGHTING FOR THE LIBERTIES THEREOF, IT IS THOUGHT NOT IMPROPER TO BE PRESERVED BY THE GENTLEMEN BELONGING TO THE AMERICAN CONTINENTAL ARMY, TO WHOSE PATRONAGE IT IS BY THE PUBLISHER MOST RESPECTFULLY RECOMMENDED. [Preface signed,] PUBLICOLA. COUNTY OF ESSEX, FEB. 1776.*

The Publisher's preface states that the Dream would have appeared several months ago, if it had not been for the great scarcity of paper, and calls attention to the action of the Massachusetts House of Representatives of February 16, 1776, for the saving and collecting of rags for that purpose ; and to the facts that "a Paper-Mill is to be erected with the utmost speed at Newbury-Port, in this County ; another will be erected, if suitable encouragement offers, at Sutton, in the County of Worcester which, with those already erected, will make eight in New-England, viz. four at Milton, one at Providence, and one at Norwich, which is not one half the number of those necessary and advantageous machines that are at this time set up in the thriving Colony of Pennsylvania alone."

The copy now in the John Carter Brown Library which formerly belonged to Sir James Mackintosh, himself one of the supposed authors, bears the statement in his handwriting that this work is "now owned to be by Sir John Dalrymple," and decisively settles the question of authorship. Regarding it the Monthly Review says : "This celebrated performance is said to have been written, printed, and liberally distributed both in Great Britain and America, at the instance and expense of government ; but whether this be true or not, the work itself, we are afraid, will answer no other purpose than to exasperate the people of Great Britain against their brethren of America ; and by inflaming misrepresentations and invectives, aggravate the evils of our present civil discord."

NYPL. This number first appeared in the Pennsylvania Journal for December 19, 1776. The title was evidently suggested by the English publication of the preceding year,—with which it has sometimes been confounded,—even to the introduction of A Crisis extraordinary. The first number is of especial historical interest. It was written during Washington's retreat over the Delaware, and by his order was read to groups of his dispirited and suffering soldiers, and its opening sentence adopted as the watchword of the movement on Trenton. A complete series, including A Crisis extraordinary, and two supernumerary Crisis, make sixteen numbers, beginning in December 1776, and ending April 19, 1783, on the eighth anniversary of the battle at Lexington: his ending recalling his beginning with the line, "The times that tried men's souls are over." Paine, however, always referred to their number as thirteen, or the number of the American Colonies. They have been reprinted at Albany, in 1792; at Granville, Middleton, New Jersey, in 1839; and, at New York, in 1902.

Philadelphia: Printed, and sold by R. Bell, in Third-Street. [February 20,] MDCCCLXXVI. pp. (2), 81-147, (1).

Fourth title: A DIALOGUE BETWEEN THE GHOST OF GENERAL MONTGOMERY JUST ARRIVED FROM THE ELYSIAN FIELDS; AND AN AMERICAN DELEGATE, IN A WOOD NEAR PHILADELPHIA.

[Philadelphia:] Printed, and sold by R. Bell, in Third-Street. MDCC-LXXVI. pp. (2), 16.

The first edition of Common sense was published in Philadelphia in January, 1776, and the sales soon reached one hundred thousand copies. The Legislature of Pennsylvania voted the Author five hundred pounds in appreciation of its value to the cause of American liberty. The "Large additions" were collected by the publisher, and are not the work of Paine except in small part.

Reprinted, also, in London, and in Newcastle, England, this year. "The Oration was an insolent performance. A motion was made to thank the orator, and ask a copy, but opposed with great spirit and vivacity from every part of the room, and at last withdrawn, lest it should be rejected, as it certainly would have been, with indignation. The orator then printed it himself, after leaving out or altering some offensive passages."—Familiar letters of John Adams.

By Hildeburn, with some probability, to George Chalmers. By Ford, with more probability from internal evidence, to the Reverend William Smith, D. D. Its general character can be inferred from the statement in the Monthly Review : that it "is written with such outrageous zeal, and contains so many scurrilous reflections against the author of 'Common sense' and the supposed favorers of independency, that we may safely conclude, from its having been printed in Philadelphia, that the Congress do not aim at a separation from this country, or that their government is not of the tyrannical nature which some have chosen to represent it." Some copies of the Additions are partly printed on a coarse blue tinted paper. In these there is generally pasted on the back of the title a slip of this blue paper with this explanation : To every purchaser. The impossibility of obtaining white, constituted the law of necessity for part of these Additions to appear in blue. The philosopher reacheth beyond outward appearances.—The patriot surmounteth every difficulty. - 15095 THE SPEECH OF WILLIAM TR - - N [Tryon], ESQ; WHO WAS EXECUTED ON THURSDAY THE 18TH OF MARCH, 1776. REBELS AND TRAITORS BEHOLD ME NOW, AND TAKE WARNING BY THIS MY DESERVED DEATH. - - - HAD I BUT HAVE TARRIED IN MY NATIVE COUNTRY, WHEN THERE LAST, I MIGHT, FOR A LITTLE WHILE LONGER, HAVE ESCAPED THIS IGNOMINIOUS DEATH; BUT BY THE PERSUASION OF BUTE AND THE DEVIL, I RETURNED TO AMERICA TO PURSUE MY OLD PRACTICE OF SHEDDING THE BLOOD OF THE INNOCENT, THE FATHERLESS AND WIDOW. - - BUT, ALAS, THE DEVIL HATH FORSAKEN ME, AS HE WILL ALL SUCH TRAITORS; WHEREFORE I BESEECH YOU GAGE, BURGOYNE, HOWE, CLINTON, DUNMORE AND VANDEPUT, AND MANY MORE OF SUCH LIKE INFERNAL ACQUAINTANCE, TO QUIT THE STEPS YOU ARE NOW TREADING, AND LET MY SHAMEFUL END BE THE MEANS OF TURNING YOU FROM FOLLOWING THE DAMNABLE ADVICE OF NORTH AND A CURSED MINISTRY, OR YOU WILL, WHEN TOO LATE, CURSE THE FIRST MOMENT YOU EVER LISTENED TO THEM. ON ACCOUNT OF MY INNUMERABLE TREACHERIES TO THIS MUCH INJURED COUNTRY, I CANNOT EXPECT THE PRAYERS OF ANY GOOD PEOPLE; NOR HAVE I THE LEAST HOPES OF MY OWN PRAYERS BEING HEARD, SO I DIE ONLY IN EXPECTATION OF MEETING MY BEFORE-MENTIONED ACQUAINTANCE, AND SOME OTHERS OF THE SAME KIND, IN A H-LL ONLY FITTING FOR SUCH INFERNAL WRETCHES AS THEY AND MYSELF.

An edition of one thousand copies was printed and distributed, without change in title, to subscribers in the American Colonies, England, Scotland and Ireland. After deducting expenses, over two hundred and ninety pounds was "distributed in charity." The volume contains a nineteen-page list of subscribers' names almost entirely of the British army and navy. The work has remained infamous from the following foot-note on page 190, under the subject of bows: § Dip arrows in matter of small-pox, and twang them at the American rebels, in order to inoculate them; this would sooner disband these stubborn, ignorant, enthusiastic savages, than any other compulsive measures. Such is their dread and fear of that disorder! In all but two known copies this note is mortised out. In some copies an engraved frontispiece, by J. Smither, is inserted. The Lenox Collection of the New York Public Library has copies with and without the variations noted.

15290 [Cut.] THE DOWNFALL OF JUSTICE; AND THE FARMER JUST RETURN'D FROM MEETING ON THANKSGIVING DAY. A COMEDY, LATELY ACTED IN CONNECTICUT.
IN THIS SECOND EDITION IS ANNEXED, A FABLE, BY WAY OF AN ADDRESS TO A

- 15315 — THE PROWESS OF THE WHIG CLUB, AND THE MANŒUVRES OF LEGION. "PRO ARIS ET FOCIS!" [Two lines from] SWIFT.

Baltimore : Printed for the Author. [1777.] pp. [16], (4), [4.] 16mo. BA.

This tract contains the defense of William Goddard against the action of the Whig Club of Baltimore, which drove him from the city in consequence of an article published in the Maryland Journal, under the signature of "Tom Tell Truth." The intention of this article, which was written by General Charles Lee, was "ironically to sneer at a silly report then prevailing, that General Howe had offered the most eligible terms of accomodation to Congress, which they had refused and concealed from the people." A committee of the Whig Club waited upon Mr. Goddard and demanded of him the author's name, which he refused to give, and by their request accompanied the committee to the club room. Here he was again interrogated, and on his refusal to make known the name of the writer in question, they passed a sentence of banishment against him. Mr. Goddard memorialized the Council of Safety for Maryland, whose committee reported that the "proceedings are a manifest violation of the Constitution, contrary to the Declaration of rights, and tend, in their consequences, to the overthrow of all regular government."
